Making Justice Real

Founded in 1932, Legal Aid is the oldest and largest general civil legal services program in the District of Columbia. For more than 80 years, Legal Aid lawyers have been making justice real – in individual and systemic ways – for persons living in poverty in D.C. Every year, our lawyers provide high-quality, zealous representation and engage in systemic advocacy in the areas of family law and domestic violence, affordable housing and eviction prevention, public benefits, and consumer law.

This year is also the 10th Anniversary of Legal Aid's nationally-recognized appellate program, the Barbara McDowell Appellate Advocacy Project. The generous support of our donors enables us to make justice real for thousands of D.C. residents. On their behalf, we thank you for your support.

The Servant of Justice Award

For the past twenty-five years, the Legal Aid Society of the District of Columbia has presented the Servant of Justice Award to individuals or organizations who have demonstrated faithful dedication and remarkable achievement in ensuring all persons have equal and meaningful access to justice. In some instances, as this evening, the Award has been given posthumously to recognize the contributions of individuals we were unable to honor during their lifetimes.

Tonight's honorees made the struggle for equal justice part of their personal and professional identities through their commitment to and concern for the community of which they are a part. Please join us in expressing our gratitude for extraordinary contributions to the cause of access to justice in the District and beyond.

the leading appellate advocates of her generation when she was the Founding Director of Legal Aid's Appellate Advocacy Program, now named in Barbara's honor, was established in 2004 to address the law agenda before the D.C. Court of Appeals. Barbara was an expert in that field. She combined her powerful intellect and unique skill with that of everyone else. She believed deeply that she could make a difference in the lives of everyone and used every case as an opportunity to do just that.

As the Director of the Appellate Project, Barbara guided the Project through its early years. Today, Legal Aid is now known as a leading institutional law firm, frequently appointed as amicus in cases of importance to low-income and appellate levels.

From 2004, Barbara spent nearly seven years as Assistant to the General Counsel, a role in which she argued eighteen cases before the Supreme Court and wrote briefs in numerous other cases. Before that, she was a partner at Jones Day in the Issues and Policy Office, a partner at Yale Law School, Barbara served as a clerk to Justice White on the U.S. Supreme Court, Judge Ralph K. Winter on the Second Circuit, and Judge José A. Cabranes on the U.S. District Court in Connecticut.

Barbara spent many years at Legal Aid, establishing critical precedent in the District of Columbia. During her time as Legal Aid, Barbara was named a recipient of the Public Service Award, which is presented annually to individuals who exemplify the highest accomplishments and excellence in the District of Columbia, as presented by Chief Justice John G. Roberts, Jr.

Barbara was, at the age of 56. Her husband, Jerry Hartman, has been a devoted partner in her good works. He was instrumental in creating the Drinker Family Impact Project and is the Founder of the Barbara McDowell

Barbara McDowell Appellate Advocacy P

This year, we celebrate the 10th Anniversary of Legal Aid's Appellate Project, named in memory of Barbara McDowell, this evening's Servant of the Law. The Project was begun with seed money from the District of Columbia, which continues to provide generous support – and is envisioned to continue to provide generous support – and is envisioned to benefit the community. Since its inception, the Project has benefited from ex

In addition to Barbara, noted advocate David Reiser has been here from the start. The law firm of Zuckerman Spaeder generously alloted more than a quarter of his time to Legal Aid matters. David has been instrumental in the Project, from case selection and legal strategy to brief writing and arguments. In substantial part due to his work with Legal Aid, David was named Legal Aid Servant of Justice in 2006 and received the American Bar Association's Pro Bono Publico Award in 2010. The Project's current Director is David. D.C. Bar President and long-time partner at Hogan Lovells. Jack is the recipient of the Court Excellence's 2012 Justice Potter Stewart Award.

Barbara McDowell was the Director for the first five years of the Project. She won significant legal victories involving housing, public benefits, and the rights of the poor; benefiting hundreds, if not thousands, of people. Her most significant wins included rulings that a domestic violence restraining order should be less fit for purposes of awarding custody than the victim, Smith v. Smith, 1107 (D.C. 2008); that the domestic relations statute as written grants custody to a non-parent guardian, W.D. v. C.S.M. 906 A.2d 317 (D.C. 2006), and that the court was permitted to give custody to a non-parent guardian, W.D. v. C.S.M. 906 A.2d 317 (D.C. 2006), and that landlords must respond to reasonable requests for repairs under the Fair Housing Act from tenants with mental or physical disabilities, Kriegsfeld Corp., 884 A.2d 1109 (D.C. 2005) (en banc).

The Project continues its work today. Through close work with Legal Aid and careful monitoring of the decisions of courts and administrative agencies, we strive to identify significant emerging or unresolved issues. We seek out amicus opportunities in cases that present priority issues and seek out appropriate cases to achieve high impact, positive legal change. In appropriate cases, we file briefs at the trial court level or even in the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia.

created through the generosity of Martin and Arlene Klepper in the late 1970s. The Doer Prize is awarded to the volunteer who has made significant contributions to the mission of the Legal Aid Society of the District of Columbia.

The Prize to Stefanie Doebler, an individual who has made the most significant contribution to the mission of Legal Aid through her dedicated work over the past eight years in Legal Aid's annual project helping low-income individuals navigate the Medicare Part D drug program.

Medicare Part D prescription drug benefit was added to the Medicare health insurance for millions of individuals who are elderly or have disabilities. Since the program's inception, Legal Aid has worked with Whitman-Walker Health in a massive undertaking to help low-income elderly individuals analyze their prescription drug needs and the Medicare plan restrictions. Last year, through this program, Legal Aid and its staff and volunteers served almost 600 clients who are elderly and have disabilities.

“Thanks to Legal Aid,
my son Jamal and I are now in a

safe,
stable
family situation.”

Carolyn Blount

For more than 80 years, Legal Aid has been dedicated to making justice accessible to all, particularly those living in poverty in the District. Though Legal Aid has experienced significant growth in recent years, the need for free or affordable civil legal services remains high among poor and low-income D.C. residents.

Poor persons are far more likely than persons of means to encounter legal issues where the stakes are high. One in three residents living east of the Annapolis River and one in five in the District of Columbia are considered poor by the federal government.

At Legal Aid, our lawyers work each and every day to combat injustices that many people as possible have access to a lawyer. Every year, Legal Aid handles hundreds of matters in the areas of family/domestic violence, housing, consumer law. Legal Aid attorneys also help hundreds of others with legal issues or referrals and seek systemic and appellate change to better protect those living in poverty. In 2013, Legal Aid attorneys were able to provide legal assistance in more than 2,800 matters, directly benefitting more than 10,000 people. So much of our work is unquantifiable – you cannot put a price tag on the care you provide to your child – we were able to provide full representation to more than 1,000 children with a history of abuse – in 974 matters; our quantifiable individual cases alone resulted in $1.2 million in financial benefits to our clients.

In a city with one of the greatest income differences between rich and poor, Legal Aid is working to make justice real for D.C.’s most vulnerable residents.

PRACTICE AREAS

Housing Law: We represent tenants who need help having serious legal issues corrected or avoiding unjust eviction. Our housing lawyers also assist in the preservation of public housing to preserve subsidies, fight illegal rent increases, and work to prevent the loss of public housing development.

Family/Domestic Violence Law: We work with victims of domestic violence to ensure their safety and work to achieve family stability through child support enforcement and other legal services.

Public Benefits Law: We ensure that the necessary “safety net” programs (including health care, Food Stamps, Supplemental Security Income, Temporary Assistance for Needy Families, and Unemployment Insurance) are available to all eligible residents.

Consumer Law: We provide much-needed representation to help homeowners avoid foreclosure and fight foreclosure fraud and assist in the resolution of small claims and other consumer cases.

PRO BONO PROGRAM

ellate Advocacy Project, described on page 13 of this program, assisting persons living in poverty before the District of Columbia ive court-based projects which locate lawyers at the courthouse legal services, including temporary representation, to some of residents.

Based Project, which addresses the overwhelming need for clients in D.C. Superior Court's Landlord and Tenant Branch; Community Legal Services Project, which serves some of D.C.'s most vulnerable clients in D.C. Superior Court's Paternity and Child Support Branch; and Legal Services Project, which helps low-income clients with their legal cases; and Violence Intake Center at the courthouse in Northwest D.C., where domestic violence get to safety and with other legal needs. In addition to ensuring that our services are accessible to our clients in our Northwest office, we have a critically-important partnership with the Intake Center at the United Medical Center in Southeast D.C., which is located at the "Big Chair" building in Anacostia.

Full year of operation for Legal Aid's newest intake site, at the Legal Aid Fieldman Center (LAF) in Southwest D.C. This is an extraordinary collaboration with the law firm of Kirkland & Ellis LLP. Kirkland not only provides legal services for the project, but also staffs the project with lawyers and paralegals. Kirkland lawyers and staff devoted more than 4,500 hours valued at $1.5 million to the project, a testament to their commitment to the cause of making justice real for Legal Aid clients in Southwest D.C.

Legal Aid endeavors to integrate pro bono into almost every aspect of our operations. Rotating loaned associates who are embedded at Legal Aid from the law firms of Porter LLP, Crowell & Moring LLP, Sidley Austin LLP, Skadden, Arns, & LLP, and Steptoe & Johnson LLP provide intensive pro bono services and guidance and a wide range of other legal counsel from Pillsbury Winthrop Special Counsel Julia Judish – our 2009 Klepper Prize for Volunteer

Volunteer lawyers also spend hundreds of hours each year conducting intake interviews with potential clients at Legal Aid's Northwest office. Kirkland & Ellis LLP staff our Southwest intake site at the Friendship Baptist Church, providing representation for nearly every client referred from the Southwest

Our current figures indicate that volunteers throughout the Washington, D.C. area devoted more than 36,000 hours – worth more than $16.5 million in legal services – real for our client community in 2013.

The bulk of those hours involve direct representation of clients through the Pro Bono Referral Program. Individual cases are screened initially and referred to pro bono counsel. Experienced Legal Aid attorneys are available for volunteers to answer questions, provide sample pleadings, and develop strategy. Every day, Legal Aid's pro bono partners help our clients secure and affordable rental housing, ensure family stability through custody orders, gain protection from abusers, secure safety-net benefits and preserve home ownership, and more.

For more information about pro bono opportunities with Legal Aid, contact Jodi Feldman, Supervising Attorney, by phone at (202) 661-5965 or by email at jfeldman@legalaiddc.org.
